PROFESSIONAL CREDENTIALS

IONEL PETROÏ

A student of the unlikely trinity of accordion, piano and double bass, Ionel Petroï has become a prolific composer who comfortably moves between the classical and film music worlds.

Born in the former Yugoslavia of Rumanian parents, Ionel is a citizen of France. Given an accordion by his grandfather at the age of six, he toured Serbia, playing in his grandfather's folk band. This cherished experience provided him with an undisputable knowledge and love for improvisation, performing and learning about his varied audiences—all this, as a young boy!

Ionel went on to study piano, double bass and conducting at the Conservatory of Belgrade, where he majored in composition, earning both bachelor and master degrees. [His master's degree is the equivalent of a doctorate in France.] During this time, he played professionally, touring European cities with the prestigious chamber orchestra "Dusan Skovran" of Belgrade, as well as becoming a well-known jazz pianist, playing numerous concerts.

After receiving the First Prize in Composition at the Belgrade Conservatory, he relocated to Paris, where he continued his studies at the Conservatoire National Supérieur de Musique, where again, he was the recipient of the Premier Prix in Composition. At the Conservatoire, Ionel studied with many great composers, including Marius Constant, Claude Ballif, Oliver Messiaen, Iannis Xenakis, Pierre Boulez, among others.

Upon receiving the Premier Prix in Paris, he was personally invited by György Ligeti to attend his two-week composition workshop in Szombathely, Hungary. Several years later, Ionel was invited to become Composer-in-Residence at the Djerrasi Foundation in San Francisco, where he produced concerts, composed and oversaw the month-long composition workshops. The following year, he was a special guest composer at the Other Minds Contemporary Music Festival.

Ionel's work is published by Universal Music Publishing MGB France-Durand, Ricordi, Salabert and IBOX, and is continually broadcast internationally on radio and television. He has written more than 70 orchestral, chamber, ballet, and instrumental ensemble works, including the opera French Lessons.

However, it was during his years in Paris that Ionel elected to study film scoring at Ecole Normal, under the tutelage of one of the great film composers, Laurent Petigirard. Later, he continued his studies at the Institut de Recherche et Coordination Acoustique /Musique (IRCAM), learning new technologies and pursuing innovative ways of creating fresh sounds, interesting forms and, finally, scoring films.

A musicologist with worldwide experience, Ivanka Stoianova recently completed her book, Relative Man: The Music of Ionel Petroï. She, "...explores the relative journey of this complex, modern, contemporary musician...". The memoir spans a far reaching scope of Ionel's entire musical productivity to date.

Ionel continues his work in film music, having scored and provided music most recently for Fancypants (Joshua Russell, dir.), The Hindenburg Omen (Frederic Colier, dir.) and Burning Man (Patrick Morrell, dir.), among others.

His work can also be found on a considerable library of albums—both classical and contemporary—that includes Little Mermaid, Faces, 9/11, Wall Street and a CD/DVD for To Love and Be Loved.

Ionel is a resident of New York City.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT OF MR. PETROÏ'S WORK

“His playing has character, and there are smiles to be had in his music...Petroï demonstrates his own skill at orchestration...
Petroï creates some superb effects with the muted strings and sliding brass...”—Barnaby Rayfield, Fanfare-USA “Ionel’s score elevated the entire narrative, building layers of story with instruments and notes. Ionel’s gentle optimism and ingenious critical thinking made the arduous process of creative excellence feel less like a terrifying journey into a hurricane and more like a wild romp through puddles in a rainstorm.

“Without Ionel Petroï, I’m absolutely convinced that Fancypants would be half the movie it is today. Ionel’s determined creativity and unbridled passion for excellence would be impossible to work with in any other person -- but in Ionel, there is remarkable balance. In him is a rare blend of humility, confidence, and creative genius. He’s absolutely wonderful to work with.”—Joshua Russell, dir. (Fancypants, Dog Jack, The Outlaws)

“Ionel Petroï composes works in the vein of ‘music relative,’ which follows the rhythmic patterns worthy of Stravinsky’s.”—Anne Rey, Le Monde, France

“Plus, listen for the Bill Evans-meets-Messiaen stride Balkan stylings of Ionel Petroï.”—John Schaefer, Piano Workouts, WNYC New York, commenting on Petroï’s “The Music of Marrying and Burying”

“...Ionel Petroï is a highly original composer from Belgrade via Paris ...”—The Stone, New York

“His “Music of Marrying and Burying,” a collection of ragtime-inflected pieces evoking the often frenzied rituals of the Balkans.”—Corinna da Fonseca-Wollheim, New York Times

“His music has character, and there are smiles to be had in his music. Petroï demonstrates his own skill at orchestration. Petroï creates some superb effects with the muted strings and sliding brass.”—Barnaby Rayfield, Fanfare USA, commenting on Petroï’s “The Music of Marrying and Burying.”

“The most [sic] funniest piece was the world premiere “Les Melodies de Sancho Panca” by Ionel Petroï. This consisted of seven short songs, all but one set to nonsense syllables, with sardonically conventional tonal harmonies. The joke was that the accompaniments, expertly rendered by the Arlekin Quartet and bassist Jim Bergman, constantly warp the familiar chords by quarter-tine, yielding music whose out-of-tuneness undercuts its intentional banality. Baritone Roderick Gomez was the exquisitely suave soloist.”—Joshua Kosman, Crinkle Music Critic, San Francisco Chronicle (USA)

“After the suite no. 2 & no. 4 of J.S. Bach, the decision of Michael Kevin Jones to introduce the audience to a composition by a contemporary musician Ionel Petroï was a good one. Solo cello compositions have a quality which make even the most eclectic composers more accessible and the brief Cantalena and Dance by the New York-based Yugoslavian born musician was no exception.”—Gibraltar Chronicle

“I find your music to be amusing and humorous.”—the late Eugène Ionesco, famous Romanian-French playwright
