COMPOSER

PROFILE

PROFESSIONAL CREDENTIALS

ÁDÁM BALÁZS

"I have always been interested in depicting what is not visually present in a scene: the hidden motifs, the incidental, underlying factors and associations. All these things that contribute to the unparalleled magic of the moment make us think in color rather than in black and white."

Adam's musical voice is derived from his Eastern European background, his classical training, his expertise in contemporary electronics and his approach to film scoring that is not afraid of taking chances. And that voice is a part of three incredibly significant films.

Recently, Adam completed the first season of Six Feet Under for Netflix, following the successful HBO series Ruxx and Bring Back Alice.

At the 2023 Festival International du Film d'Animation d'Annecy, the animated feature, Tony, Shelly and The Magic Light (Filip Posivac, dir.), scored by Adam, was awarded the Contrechamp Feature Films Jury Award, among other significant recognitions.

In 2018, for the second time in as many years, an Adam Balázs score contributed to an Academy Award-nominated film. On Body and Soul (Testről és Lélekről) (Ildiko Enyedi, dir.) was nominated for "Best Foreign Language Film." When the film premiered at the 2017 Berlinale International Film Festival, it was awarded The Golden Bear for "Best Film."

In 2017, Adam was honored for his music collaboration on Sing (Kristóf Deák, dir.) that was awarded 'The Oscar' for "Best Live Action Short Film" at the Academy Awards.

In another significant honor, Adam is the first Hungarian composer to premiere his work, The Path of the Extraordinary, at Carnegie Hall, October 15, 2006, since Béla Bartók premiered his Concerto for Orchestra, January 11, 1944. Adam is also an Adjunct Professor and Lecturer on the art of film scoring at the Franz Liszt Academy of Music, Budapest.

“One of my earliest memories is sitting at the piano with my father. He wrote a score to an animation series, and I was in charge of “timing” the music with a stopwatch. Even then, I knew that this job was something really special...”

Born in Budapest, Hungary, Adam Balazs began playing the piano at the age of seven. His father, an internationally respected composer, having always been in favor of his son’s ambitions, introduced Adam to the fundamentals of music composition.

At the age of sixteen, Adam decided to pursue his film career professionally and, in turn, completed his musical studies at the Béla Bartók Conservatory of Budapest as a composition major while concurrently, attending the Eötvös Loránd University of Budapest (ELTE) majoring in English.

At 23, he was offered an Adjunct Lecturer position at the Department of American Studies at the ELTE University. It was during this period he pursued doctoral studies in English Renaissance and Baroque Literature. He taught a course entitled, “American Jazz: The History of a Cultural, Social and Political Phenomenon,” for four semesters. Although his music career as a classical film composer started to bloom in Europe, Adam was determined to become a film composer in the United States.

In 1998, Adam moved to New York to pursue his musical career. Adam’s major breakthrough came when he met HBO Vice President, Robert Priddy. They developed a close, working relationship and a long-lasting friendship that resulted in over one hundred image spots for Cinemax in the course of just a few years. At the time, Adam had been responsible for the musical re-designing of the network. Once the rave reviews revealed that the transformation of Cinemax’s musical image was significantly due to Adam’s fresh and energetic approach, the producers of HBO commissioned him to create the main network’s off-channel image and write music for HBO promotions.

The exposure of Adam’s music being featured on Television has created a multitude of opportunities and spawned several film projects in which he worked as the composer, producer and arranger. Adam’s composing assignments include Inner Demons (Seth Grossman, dir.) (IFC Midnight); The Elephant King

(Seth Grossman, dir.; Ellen Burstyn, Jonno Roberts; and Official Selection, Tribeca Film Festival, among numerous others); Born and Bred (Warner Brothers); California Dreaming (Lea Thompson, David Foley, Patricia Richardson); El Camino (Elizabeth Moss, Leo Fitzpatrick); The Killer Next Door (Tobin Bell, Billy Dee Williams); and, Shock Act (winner at the Tribeca and Chicago International Film Festivals).

Examples of Adam's wide-ranging versatility can also be heard in The Butterfly Effect 3: Revelations (Seth Grossman, dir./Lionsgate); director Gabor Csupo's Bridge to Terabithia and The Secret of Moonacre (Warner Bros. UK); The Man Who was Thursday (Balázs Jusst, dir.); and, in Afterlife (Virág Zomborác, dir.), which premiered to international acclaim. Adding to his work in film, he was a composer and music director of HBO International Programming, where.

he wrote for the network's series, RUXX. The series was scheduled for the HBO+ premier in Europe. Further, he also scored HBOs In Treatment (three seasons, 111 episodes) and the internationally acclaimed, Umbre (Shadows) (three seasons, 21 episodes).

Even in his traditional orchestral scores, Adam cannot escape the musical flavors that derive from his Eastern European background. In a highly competitive market, it is noteworthy that Adam, a native of Hungary, has access to the best players, conductors, halls and studio professionals working in Hungary.

"I love the challenge of time, the fevered, seemingly never-ending hours spent with creation. All to consolidate a concept by infusing the images with the sounds of my vision."

Going beyond traditional film & Television scoring, Adam has also written for the very successful videogame, Dragon Age II: Destiny (Electronic Arts).

As noted previously, a true recognition of Adam's career came when Ambassador Dr. Gábor Horváth, Consul General of the Republic of Hungary, and the Board of Directors of the Coordinating Committee for the Commemoration of the 1956 Hungarian Revolution asked him to compose a symphonic poem in honor of the 50th Anniversary of the Hungarian Revolution. The Philharmonia Orchestra of Yale performed the piece at Carnegie Hall, October 15, 2006, at a benefit concert recognizing this most historic event.

Several years ago, Adam's contemporary dance composition, Requiem, premiered with a performance by the Hungarian National Dance Troupe at the MOM Cultural Centre, Budapest. The work is described as, "...having no musical boundaries, yet it is conceptually very homogenous."

Unlike Mozart (though his was uncompleted) and Verdi, who both had completely different sequential orders of the chapters of Requiem, Adam's piece follows the text of the traditional death Mass. A considerable departure for Adam, the work received critical acclaim from both the music and dance cognoscente.

Adam shares his residency between Los Angeles, California, and Budapest, Hungary.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS OF MR. BALÁZS' WORK

"The composer I've worked with (Adam Balazs)—it's not the first time we've worked together. He studied in Hungary, and went on to work in Hollywood, actually. But at the time of my shoot, he was back in Budapest, so I could approach him. Luckily, his dad is a renowned composer as well. He's retired now, but he's still around. The last piece in the film you can hear, the final song, is actually from Adam's father, Árpád Balázs. When Adam showed me this old choir piece his dad created, I instantly picked it for the final song; it was just mesmerisingly (sic) beautiful and fit the story perfectly. So, in that sense it was an entire family, two generations of amazing composers' work went into a film, where music had a central role. I was very lucky in that sense."—Screen Picks Interview: Kristóf Deák, Writer-Director for the Academy Award-winning Sing

"Subtle and mysterious single notes composed by Adam Balazs accent the score and heighten the solitary nature of the characters' lives. The unobtrusive and selective musical accompaniment keeps the dialogue in focus and often lets the images speak for themselves."—Lindsay Bellinger, Film Critic, Review of Testről és lélekről (On Body and Soul), Golden Bear winning film

"...as her (Ildiko Enyedi) film morphs from a wistful, cerebral what-if proposition to a black-edged romantic comedy to, climactically, a life-or-death melodrama. These tonal variations are at least held in check by consistently pristine filmmaking: (Máté)

Herbai's airy, generously lit camerawork resists the expected visual impulse to delve into shadow when dealing with the recesses of the unconscious, while the tingling, echoing wind notes of Ádám Balázs' score lend an otherworldly air to the characters' stranger wanderings."—Guy Lodge, Film Critic, Review of On Body and Soul, Variety

"I had the fortune to work with Adam on The Secret of Moonacre as the composer of some of the score and the main piano theme of the movie. His compositions and arrangements were absolutely right on the mark, his music was all beautiful, haunting, magical and emotional. Adam is a young but greatly established professional composer with the very best attitude, easygoing personality and a great sense of humor. I'll definitely work with him again!"—Gabor Csupo, Director (Bridge to Terabithia, The Secret of Moonacre), Producer (Rugrats, Wild Thornberrys)

"I've worked with Adam Balazs on three films. I enjoy collaborating with Adam and appreciate what his musical imagination brings to the films in terms of creating tone and enhancing story elements. A brilliant composer and musician, Adam also has a keen understanding of cinema. He excels in a variety of genre, from techno dance music to sweeping orchestral scores, and his eclectic talent opens up a film's musical palette. Adam's work received due acknowledgment in 2006 when The Elephant King received a Gold Medal for its score at the Park City Music in Film Festival and a Best Score Award at the Sacramento International Film Festival. I look forward to working with Adam again on my next film project."—Seth Grossman, Writer-Director (The Butterfly Effect 3: Revelations, The Elephant King, Shock Act)

"Especially as they enter Mexico, the music by Adam Balazs becomes singularly soulful, adding a highly expressive dramatic texture that marks a change in culture and environment."—Cranes are Flying, Film Critic, Review of El Camino

"Adam worked long hours, for months for Shock Act and The Elephant King, bringing a level of professionalism and craftsmanship to the music that elevated the production value of the films, while deepening their meaning. He's a great guy to work with, a true team player."—Emanuel Michael, Producer (A Late Quartet, Eagle vs. Shark, Great Expectations, Boy, Sonhos De Peixe)

"Working with Adam was a blissfully unique experience. Never have I met such a stubborn composer! Being a perfectionist, he will not rest until both you and he are completely satisfied. Dedicated, versatile, talented, original, his understanding of music is second to none. He can read a scene flawlessly, and knows exactly the sounds, tone and instruments needed to achieve the desired effect. Over the years, he's cleverly honed his craft into something great, slowly composing his way into the history books. He is a soldier for the arts, a genius of present and a pioneer for the future."—Rory Kindersley, Writer-Director (Hot Lunch, Slingers, Butcher's Hill)

"I had the pleasure to work with Adam as the composer of my movie, California Dreaming. Adam was given a challenge to score the movie in an exceptionally short period of time due to an early release date, and he performed with talent and grace. It was a pleasure working him and a pleasure I'd like to repeat on future projects."—Patricia Payne, Producer

"A highlight of the production is the original music of composer Adam Balazs, which provides a funky, upbeat underscoring to the play's action. This is particularly refreshing..."—Dan Bacalzo, TheaterMania, reviewing Featuring Loretta

"Adam Balazs scored my movie, Security. His original score had to carry long sections of the movie that were dialogue-free. I was particularly happy with the musical solution he came up with for the ending of the movie. He had composed two separate pieces, each of which I liked very much: one for the concluding scene of the movie, and one for the credits. I wanted to use both pieces, but I didn't see how it would be possible to sequence them—one directly following the other—without it feeling abrupt and awkward. Adam came up with a bridge, which recalled earlier themes, and elegantly tied the two sections together, making for a seamless transition."—Mark Edgington, Writer-Director (Balaton Monks, Sunburn, Anna in the Sky)
